Sea-Side House,
HARPSWELL NECK, CASCO BAY.

This elegant and commodious Hotel, situated on the extremity of Harpswell Neck, about half a mile seaward the well-known Manasco House, has just been completed after the designs of G. C. Lawrence, Esq., Architect, and is under his superintendence, and will be open for company

On and after the Fourth of July.

Nearly surrounded by the sea, and abundantly shaded by trees, the House has a garden and herb thirty feet on three sides of the building, with wide and thoroughly ventilated halls and corridors in the interior, so that visitors can enjoy the most complete protection from the summer heat.

The steamboat wharf and boat landings are on the west side, but a deep moorage lies to the east. Ample facilities are at hand for boat moorage and fishing. On the east side is a fine grange beach, where the luxury of sea-bathing can be enjoyed at all times of the year.

At a short distance on the northeast, across an arm of the sea, is Orr's Island, celebrated by Mrs. Brew-

The new Sea House is accessible by land from the Drunken Island, a mile distant, by one of the fastest boats in the State, and by daily steamboat from Portland, where it carries inside passengers among the islands of the Bay.

Visitors coming from the Kennebec and other parts of the State can take the railroad to Portland, and proceed by stage to Harpswell, or continue by the steamer, which will take them down and back twice a day.
